

Site-Specific Wilderness Education and Interpretation Materials

Following are some guiding questions for gathering tools and materials to develop interpretive and education products highlighting wilderness in your park.

1. Determine how wilderness fits into existing park themes. What wilderness themes, goals, and objectives are specific to your park and fit in with your park's primary themes? If your park has an education program, how can wilderness be linked to your state's Standards of Learning?
2. What voices spoke up for designating wilderness in your park? Are there any individuals or organizations that provide an opposing viewpoint? What quotes highlighting the history and value of your park's wilderness area can be collected for use in programs and media products?
3. What wilderness education materials have been developed in your park? Has the park developed any articles about wilderness or outlines of interpretive programs? Who can be contacted as a source of inspiration in developing interpretive and education products?
4. Are there ways that wilderness information has been incorporated into existing park programs or media?
